AN IMPORTANT DIFFERENCE

Reports of large-scale withdrawal of German troops from the Russian front to western invasion areas are credible, even though it may be doubted that the German general staff can afford to weaken the eastern front by wholesale transfers. This is not World War I, with Russia knocked out.

This is the identical military problem German strategists warned against after World War I, when they were planning Germany's next blood-letting—the fatal division of their armies. Hitler, himself, said in "Mein Kampf" that Russia never should be attacked while England was Germany's enemy, yet took the responsibility for disregarding his own advice, perhaps believing that England no longer was an effective enemy and that the United States would not go to war.

Another passage in "Mein Kampf" is interesting to re-read at this juncture in the war. Hitler, describing the improved morale of German troops after Russia's collapse in World War I, told how Allied soldiers were affected by the realization that henceforth they would be fighting a stronger enemy—one that had conquered the Russians and now could give all its attention to conquering the Allies on the western front.

If the Allies had not broken Germany while it was bleeding in Russia, how could they expect to win victory from the "entire power of this uncanny state of heroes?" he wrote. Hitler believed, of course, that military defeat for the Allies was a certainty up to the moment of Germany's home front collapse—the now famous "stab in the back" theory.

Hitler hardly can forget that in 1944 the Allies are heartened for their forthcoming climactic effort by the fact that Germany's armies already have been beaten on the eastern front and are still engaged there. Instead of being disheartened by the seemingly impossible, they are heartened by the demonstration which started at Stalingrad and now is being continued as far west as Rumania—that the German soldier has been whipped once in World War II and can be whipped again.

FLYING THE WHITE COLLAR

Sen. Elbert D. Thomas of Utah, who says he is determined to do something for white collar workers, probably has started another Anzio beachhead without realizing it. But, as long as it's an election year, the senator can't be blamed for trying.

There are, however, some things the senator might accomplish, aside from his proposals for raising white collar pay and juggling the W.C.W.'s income tax exemptions. For instance, he might explain that the W.C.W. isn't flying the white collar any more, except on special occasions, not because he has struck his colors, but because the laundry problem is tough.

He might clear up the confusion, also, about why the worker ever wore a white collar in the first place. It was because when he got the office job his wife said he should look neat and wear his Sunday shirt. What the white collar worker aspires to is enough affluence and prestige so he can buy a couple dozen fancy shirts and dress like the movie moguls. He's not partial to white.

Another thing that gets the W.C.W. down and makes him moody is the notion that there is anything pathetic about his condition, especially in election years. If they'd just lay off him and not expect him to do the impossible whenever someone wants a bigger cut out of his earnings, he would be satisfied to muddle along with his middling affairs indefinitely. All he wants out of life, if anyone would ask him, is the privilege of solving his own little problem all by himself. It scares him silly whenever someone says he is going to be helped, because he has learned that is the prelude to holding him up by the heels and shaking him to see what falls out of his pockets. If the politicians and their friends will just lay off, he will make out somehow and have enough left over afterward to settle up the checks. His life's no bed of roses, but he likes it—and there's always the satisfaction of knowing he's the backbone of the country because that's what everybody says whenever his name is mentioned.

IMPORTANCE OF THE PRIMARY

The supreme court's 8-1 ruling giving Negroes in Texas the right to vote in the Democratic primary is based on the fact that in the one-party states of the solid south primary voting is as important as election voting and, therefore, is secured by the Constitution. Outside the solid south, the decision's principal importance may be the backing it gives to primary voting in general. The sad truth is that in states which give all properly qualified electors a chance to register their choice at the primary, there is something close to studied indifference to the process.

The original argument for the primary was that it gave electors two chances to weigh the merits of a candidate, instead of one, and that it enabled party members to name their own tickets, instead of being forced to accept the nominees of political machines. At the turn of the century, when politics seemed to be muddling in hopeless corruption, the primary looked like an important step forward into a brighter future for free government.

While it hasn't failed, except in the arbitrary judgment of those who never wanted it to succeed, it hasn't lived up to its promises for the simple reason that electors haven't made good use of it. Too many of them preferred to let someone else do the voting. Perhaps some of the backsliders, reminded that the right to vote in a primary can be extremely important to a citizen who doesn't have it, will take their responsibility more seriously this year.

WAR ON THE DANUBE

On the same day that the Danube is mentioned as the objective of Russian troops in Rumania, United States bombers carried out a heavy raid on Budapest. The connection is more than superficial.

With the Russians in control of the mouth of the Danube on the Black sea and shipping facilities in Budapest damaged by recurrent bombing raids, Germany would lose part of the use of southeastern Europe's most important waterway. The river is navigable for Black sea shipping more than 100 miles inland from its mouth. Barges ply the river beyond that point as it winds its way through Bucharest along the southern border of Rumania to Belgrade, capital of Yugoslavia, before turning northward to reach Budapest. At Budapest, it turns west to Vienna and its sources in Germany.

Russian plans for pressing an attack on Germany are unknown but, to the extent that all military tactics are dictated in large degree by geography, one logical line of approach would be up the valley of the Danube. It is, therefore, of more than passing importance that Budapest has become a bombing target for the United States air force in Italy. The Russian ground forces are hundreds of miles away, but if their advance continues and is speeded, as it may be, by the disintegration of organized resistance in Rumania, the first joint operation of the United States and Russia might well occur somewhere on the picturesque reaches of the Danube.

THE STARS SAY:

For Thursday, April 6

ALTHOUGH, according to astral testimonies, there are prospects of obstacles, delays, disappointments and dogged impediments, affecting all personal as well as business relations, yet there is also a sign that the mentality, vision, energy and spirit of initiative are keyed up to high tempo which may vanquish all frustrating circumstances. Aggressive attack of all congestive or thwarting situations, with determination, skill and the "will to win" should attain enduring and sound returns. But guard possessions and health, also sustain amicable relations in domestic, social or love contacts.

Those whose birthday it is are admonished to summon all their exceptional forces and facilities to meet possible reversals, delays, disappointments or other forms of defeat or frustration, seeming to threaten the acceptance of opportunities for progress and security. The mind and energies may be keyed to cleverness and initiative, which should be directed against the opposing forces strenuously and practically, but cheerfully and with good grace.

A child born on this day should have excellent abilities, stimulated faculties and forces, which should aggressively vanquish tenacious obstacles in life.

The veteran's homecoming is not always the grand and glorious reunion the men dream of, but women can help make it so by studying the man's mental attitude while he is still in the hospital, then working to give him the sense of security and stability he needs.—Mrs. Carter Collins, president Association of Army and Navy Wives.

The idea that Germany can exercise her former place in Europe and can do so without danger to all free men after the Nazi hoodlums are eliminated is not true.—Henry J. Taylor, war correspondent.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

Disease Treatment Wisely Classified

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

ONE of the most philosophical, by which I mean wisest, and most mature medical books of our time is "The Art of Treatment," by Dr. William R. Houston. I keep a copy permanently on my book case shelves. Other textbooks come and go on those shelves, but that and a very few others stay year after year. I take it down in my contemplative and relaxed moods and always find it interesting and thought provoking.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through this column.

One particular general lesson it has for both physician and layman is the way it classifies methods of treatment for various diseases.

The average patient goes to the doctor and demands—"What will I take for this?"—excepting the answer to be (1) a small box of pills which he takes three times a day; he has some idea that after he swallows the pill it explodes slowly inside him right at the seat of the disease and when enough explosions have occurred he is cured. Or (2) a list of foods he must not eat and when he has not eaten them long enough the disease is purged and he is a new man and he may go out and seek whatever he wishes to devour. Or (3) a course of baths and massage. Or (4) a temporary change of climate. Or (5) extra vitamins.

Well, consider as a contrast to that conception, one of Dr. Houston's headings:

Diseases which impose a limitation upon life as a Condition of Treatment.

Ouch! That hurts. Nobody wants to impose a limitation on his life or activities. But you see it is a "Condition of Treatment." If you want to be comfortable, if you want to give the disease the least chance,

LENTEN REDUCING DIET
Thursday—500 Calories
BREAKFAST

½ grapefruit—no sweetening.
3 tablespoons cornflakes. No sugar.
¼ cup whole milk.

LUNCHEON

1 cup cream of tomato soup—made with milk.
1 slice whole wheat toast or 2 soda crackers—no butter.

1 cup tea—no cream or sugar.

DINNER

1 broiled kidney.

2 tablespoons green beans—no butter.

1 slice whole wheat toast—thin—no butter.

1 baked apple—no sweetening, no cream.

1 cup coffee—no cream or sugar.

1 cup clear consommé if desired.

you will have to rearrange your habits. Nature is very imperious sometimes. That is one of her requirements.

The conditions that Dr. Houston lists as demanding a limitation of life as the necessary of treatment are: obesity, heart disease, angina pectoris, hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure, chronic tuberculosis, chronic bronchitis and old age.

Another group is that of "patients who are to be treated chiefly by nursing care." Here are listed most of the common disorders such as colds, influenza, acute fevers, measles, most of the diseases of the nervous system, such as nervous breakdowns and states of exhaustion.

Then there are the diseases in which the treatment is purely tentative and experimental. What is good for one patient may not work on another and vice versa. So here the personal equation of the doctor is paramount. A doctor who has a treatment in which he has complete confidence is the best one to go to. You never can judge the treatment by what the patients say about it. Half of them are wildly enthusiastic and say—"He cured me when everybody else failed"; and half say—"The treatment is a fake and doesn't do any good at all." In this group is listed arthritis, asthma, allergic disorders, neuralgias and muscular rheumatism, some skin disease—such as psoriasis, eczema, dermatitis and ringworm—and those diseases in which the diagnosis is uncertain.

You see the diseases that can be cured by a specific, in which the doctor can answer definitely to the question—"What shall I do for this?" by giving a single simple remedy, are in the minority. They include the infections for which the sulfonamides, or penicillin or antibiotics, or serums can be given, those treated by a specific diet as in diabetes, and some disorders remedied by surgery.

THE RED CARNATION by BURTON STEVENSON

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

"I'm afraid you'll find him too clever to be tripped," said Schneider to Tony. "But it's certainly worth trying. I understand of course that there's only one sort of racket which they could be working to get their hands on. That's blackmail, and that's what Metcalf is after. He's got to have a good reputation and a fine practice. He must make at least fifty thousand a year."

"Have you ever been in his office?"

"Oh, yes, several times. He treated a niece of mine very successfully, and I went to talk to him about her. She's not really my niece—she's the wife of Dudley Graham, mentioned by you a minute ago. Metcalf impressed me as knowing his business—if you can call it a business. Most of his patients are rich middle-aged women who imagine they have something the matter with their nerves. Of course, Schneider went on, "all that is really the matter with most of these is that their husbands seem to have lost interest in them."

"What can Metcalf do about it?" Tony inquired.

The lawyer merely grinned, then took a sip of his brandy.

After a pause, Tony said, "I think you're right about the murderer going away and then coming back. For one thing, he went into that other bedroom to see what had happened there, and straightened the rug. Terry had tripped over it. But there was one thing he forgot to do."

"What was that?" Schneider asked.

"There were no powder stains on McKibben's hand," Tony explained. The paraffin test showed that. When there aren't any stains the presumption is that the hand didn't fire the pistol. Powder marks can be made in framing such a seeming suicide. And the columnist described the technique of such a frame-up."

"That's possible," commented the lawyer, then grinned. "If I ever have occasion to kill a man and make it look like suicide, I'll consult you perhaps for the details."

He added with a smile, "Anything else you wanted to ask about?"

"Just one thing. You had a table close to McKibben's at Max's Monday night."

"Yes—you saw me."

"Who was it came up to McKibben's table and called him a swine?"

"Oh," said Schneider, "that was after I left. But I heard about it, and I happen to know who it was. It was Stuyvesant Bradford. Know him?"

"I've heard of him as the only man in New York who goes from a night club straight home to his wife."

Schneider nodded. "That's the man—the perfect husband. His devotion has been especially marked since their baby came a couple of years ago—after all hope had been abandoned."

A sudden thought flashed through Tony's mind. Could it have been Mrs. Bradford whose voice he had heard on that dictograph record? Had the wife of the perfect husband been giving him the run-around?

Schneider was sipping his brandy thoughtfully.

"That was an interesting story that Terry told you," he said at last. "But there's one thing I've been wondering about. It seems to me that when McKibben saw that unknown coming toward him from the bathroom with a gun in his hand, he'd have said something, or the murderer would have said something. Didn't Terry hear anything?"

"Yes, he heard something," Tony answered, "but he couldn't be sure what it was. Just a word or two, he says, that sounded like 'Oh, hush!'"

"Oh, hush! eh?" Schneider repeated. "I don't see how that makes any sense."

"Neither do I," Tony agreed. "Was it McKibben said it?"

"Terry wasn't sure who said it. He had never heard McKibben's voice. Naturally he assumed it was McKibben since he didn't know there was anyone else in the flat."

"It's an interesting point," said Schneider, and finished his brandy. "If I were you, Tony, I'd turn the heat on Metcalf when you see him tomorrow. He's your best bet. Now I've got to be going."

"So have I," said Tony. "You've been very helpful, Herschel. You never fail me."

"I'm always interested in this sort of thing, you know," and Schneider rose to his feet. "I'll be curious to hear what Metcalf tells you."

"I'll give you a ring," Tony promised.

Max's place was crowded, as usual, and the first person Tony saw was Lily Edgerton. She was dining with Rhino. She was very animated and waved gaily to Tony. He couldn't help smiling as he returned the wave. She had managed to fix things up, then, Rhino, to be sure, looked rather glum—perhaps he felt the shades of the prison-house closing about him again—but anyway there he was. A triumph for Lily.

At the next table was Allan Guthrie, also with his wife, both of them quite gay and apparently enjoying each other's company. Guthrie was looking much less worried than when Tony had seen him last. Almost placid, in fact. Maybe he had been scared enough to go straight for a while.

Further along was a third couple whom Tony didn't know—middle-aged, prosperous-looking, and with eyes for nobody but each other. They were not habitués—Tony was sure he had never seen them there before.

Max came by presently and stopped for a moment's talk.

"Quiet here tonight, I can see that," said Tony. "Everybody with his wife."

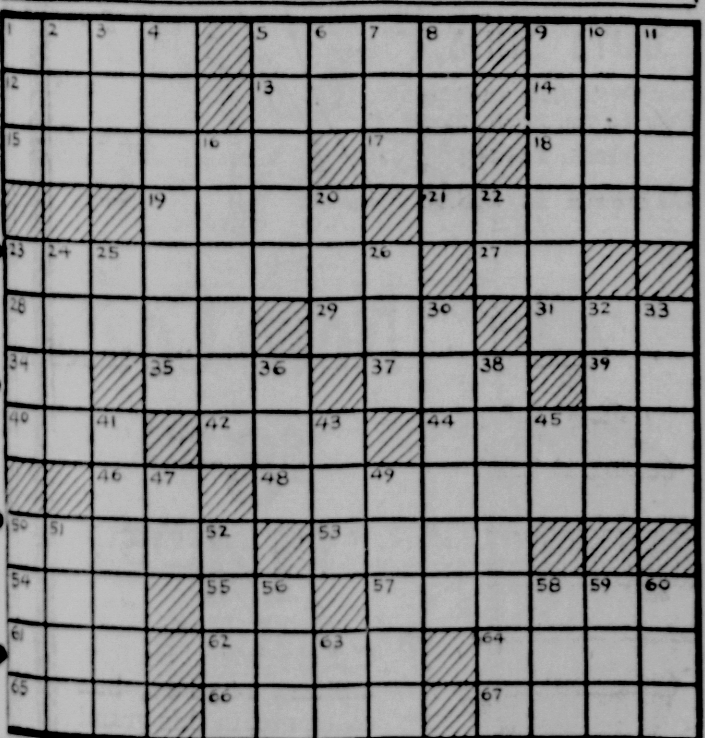

"Yes," agreed Max gloomily. "No money in a crowd like this."

"Most of them are drinking wine," Tony pointed out.

"But not enough of it. Take Lily and Rhino over there—they've had one bottle. With anybody else they'd have had three. They've made it up, you know. Say, that was a low-down dig of yours about death softening all resentments!—and Guthrie isn't going to be sued this time."

Manners! Why Did We Ever Learn 'em

By ARLENE WOLF
AP Features Writer

Manners are funny things. If you have too many, you're a snob. If you have too few, you're a social outcast, doomed to reading the ads on how to win friends until you've mended your ways. Einstein himself couldn't figure out how many is too many—or how few is too few.

Take the educated tencup pinky, for example. A slight upward curl is etiquette-proof, but let a suggestion of an authentic bend creep in and you're lost. You're a phony—a poseur. You've probably never been to a ball before. It's only a question of time before you're going to dump the whole business in someone's lap.

A modulated quiet voice gives you that well-bred air, but pitch it one octave too low while you're talking to Mrs. Smith, and Mrs. Jones will think you're starting a whispering campaign against her tattle-tale grey lips. Preserve a dignified silence, and both ladies will present a united front and call you high hat.

If you laugh too loudly, you're boisterous. If you don't laugh at all, you're a sourpuss. Mind your own business and the neighbors will think you're snooty. Be friendly and you'll save your snooty.

Mind your grammar and your contractions and never say ain't—and watch everyone look up to you. But just try minding your prepositions, and asking telephone callers "to whom do you wish to speak?" Who do you think you are anyway, Mrs. Noah Webster?

Being fastidious about your grooming and clothes is fine—everybody likes a powdered nose and a straight stocking seam. But yank your girdle around in public to straighten out that seam and kiss your reputation goodbye. You're a hussy. Use no make-up at all, and you're an old-fashioned leftover strictly out of the groove. Use a dab too much, and you're a painted doll described by the neighbors with a string of unsavory adjectives.

If you don't smoke, you're old-fashioned. If you smoke in the street, you're brazen. Go without a hat, and you're no lady. Wear a hat and refuse to take it off in indoors and you're stuck up—or a show-off. Be well-mannered, and won't discuss other people's manners over the backyard fence, and you're anti-social. Tear the lady next door apart, and you're a gossip.

In a manner of speaking, manners are a mess!

COLUMBUS, April 5.—A controversy over the state of dress or undress of a coed pictured in a campus humor magazine will be aired before the Ohio State university committee on student publications.

John B. Fullen charged yesterday in the university Alumni bulletin that a "nude" in the March issue of the Sundial "outshames the old Police Gazette." Prof. James Polard, chairman of the publications committee and head of the school of journalism at the university, announced last night the charges would be investigated "before the last of the week."

Fullen, editor of the bulletin, likened the Sundial to a "disreputable, brazen little hussy." He upbraided Miss Phyllis Giberger of Fremont, editor of the humor magazine.

"The nude you printed on page nine outshames the old Police Gazette," Fullen wrote. "They printed the can-can girls and the girls in the chorus line, but you took a real live co-ed from here on the campus. We hope her mother saw it and spanked her."

In a college magazine edited by women, some of your material is nothing short of nauseating even to an old son-of-a-gun like me."

"It was not a nude," Miss Giberger declared when told of the article. She did not amplify this statement.

"I have not been informed by university officials that the March issue was unacceptable," she said. "Until I am so informed I have nothing more to say."

Washington Round-up

News and Views, Briefly On What's Going On In Capital

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, April 5—Sen. Johnson (D-Colo.) today demanded that a "severe reprimand" be administered to the officer who withheld news last summer of the 400 paratroopers who were lost when confused American gunners turned their fire on 23 U. S. transports. The planes had flown within range in the wake of a light of German aircraft.

Disclosing that most members of the senate military committee felt an investigation would serve no useful purpose, Johnson said: "The worst part of it is the failure to report promptly when such tragedies occur. People ought to be told the bad news with the good, right when it happens." His demand for a reprimand came only shortly after two other less serious but similar accidents were disclosed—the shooting down of an American transport by British fighters and the shelling of American landing boats by an American destroyer.

ON THE SPOT
Administration leaders today were reported to be on a "spot" in their selection of Democratic senators who will serve as members of the political campaign investigating committee which will police expenditures in the presidential and senatorial elections. The Democrats are said to have been confronted by a CIO demand that they pass over any member who voted for the Smith-Connally anti-strike measure.

Excluding senators who are barred either by custom or rule from serving on the committee, if the CIO demand were to be adhered to only four senators would be eligible—Green, of Rhode Island, Murray and Wheeler of Montana, all of whom voted against the bill, and Glass, of Virginia, whose vote was not recorded.

SCRAMBLED EGGS
Midwestern senators have called another conference with government officials to try to unscramble the egg market. And the War Food Administration (WFA) also trying to solve the problems of a market glut will begin a nationwide egg-buying program in an effort to assure producers a minimum return of 26 cents a dozen. The WFA will purchase the eggs and distribute them to public institutions and to school lunch projects and possibly resell them to egg drying plants.

CITY COUNCIL

Vincent also explained that council had increased slightly the health department's incidental fund to allow for occasional clerk hire as needed, rather than approve an extra full-time employee.

Relative to the police department, Safety Committee Chairman Charles Rheun reported that the police cruiser was back in operation with five new tires.

Council adopted an amended ordinance covering payment of salary to Mrs. Ruth Berry, city stenographer and relief clerk, so that $135 of her wage will come from the general fund and $20 from the relief fund. State laws prohibit a municipality from paying more than 12 per cent of its actual relief needs, for administrative costs.

The 1944 appropriation ordinance approved by council shows the following breakdown:

Methane Available In Large Quantities As Gas Substitute

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, April 5—The United States has waiting around the corner, almost ready-made, a substitute for gasoline potentially twice as plentiful annually as all the gasoline used in America in 1941.

The substitute is Methane, or marsh gas, and its sources are natural gas, petroleum, coal and sewage. Methane is a byproduct of refining coal, of coal processing and sewage disposal and can be made easily from natural gas.

In a report to the American Chemical Society today, Dr. Gustav Engloff and Mary Alexander of the Universal Oil Products Co., Chicago, declared Methane readily can be prepared to serve as a gasoline substitute.

Even if petroleum should dwindle there will still remain from other sources a large amount of Methane gas. Further, Dr. Engloff said, Methane can be supplemented by other gases to run cars, as is being done in Europe and other parts of the world.

There are half a dozen gases good for running autos, and 25,000 American trucks and buses, mostly on the Pacific coast, are already using one or another of these. The "containers" or tanks for gas fuel are, at present, heavy and cumbersome. This, Dr. Engloff asserted, is not a serious handicap for trucks and buses, but before gas could be used on passenger cars small, stout tanks would have to be developed to hold the highly compressed gases.

There are, he added, about 140,000 vehicles running on Methane gas in Europe, largely in Germany. Methane gas would reduce cost of lubrication and repairs, because crankcase oil is not diluted, and there is practically no carbon deposit, Dr. Engloff stated.

Methane also could be used to run railroad locomotives, and at the same time to heat, air-condition, refrigerate and furnish cooking on the trains.

There are no Methane gallon figures available in the United States today. In Germany this gas has been sold for the equivalent of 41 cents a gallon for gasoline, in England for 50 cents.

Illinois Town Safe Minus Traffic Lights

(By United Press)

CLINTON, Ill.—Despite the fact that there isn't a traffic light in Clinton (population—6,331 in 1940), there hasn't been a single traffic death here for six years.

The secret of this central Illinois town's remarkable safety record lies in two measures, according to city officials. These are strict enforcement of local speed laws and activities of the elementary school patrol system.

Police arrested 81 speed law violators in 1943, officials said. Of these, one was on a charge of drunken driving and the remaining 80 were reckless driving and speeding warrants. It was said.

Mayor B. M. Pugh and Police Chief Ray Smith, aided by councilmen and street department members, worked out and are enforcing a 12-mile-an-hour speed maximum for Clinton's business district.

Five regular patrols composed of nearly 100 school children protect elementary school pupils of the town's four public and one parochial school. These groups patrol the streets in the vicinities of the schools.

The only "stop" signs in town are those bordering State Routes 10 and 51, which skirt the outer edges of Clinton. The last traffic fatality reported in the vicinity of Clinton was six years ago, when a man was killed on the highway, just outside the city limits.

sign our name and the date," Tkachuk said. "In case it doesn't open when the ripcord is pulled, the guy who packed it has to answer a charge of involuntary manslaughter."

OHIO STATE GUARD WILL BE DOUBLED

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, April 5—Adj. Gen. Donald F. Pancoast announced today the Ohio state guard would be doubled at once to its full strength of 4,800 officers and men. Present strength is about 2,400.

Pancoast said the War department had authorized the increase for reasons of internal security. He did not elaborate.

Two new infantry regiments will be organized to bring the total to five under the new program, the adjutant general explained. He said one regiment would be recruited in Cleveland and vicinity and the other in Northwestern Ohio. Most of the volunteers will be men over draft age or classified 4-F in Selective Service, he added.

Pancoast said several car loads of additional weapons, ammunition, clothing and other military equipment already was in the state armory here and that other shipments were expected.

Present officers will remain in command of existing regiments, Pancoast said. He did not announce commanders for the new units.

Zero Pilot Is Too Fast. Flies Under Own Bomb

(By Associated Press)

ADVANCED SOLOMON ISLAND BASE, April 2.—(Delayed.)—A Japanese Zero pilot who dropped an aerial phosphorus bomb at a Liberator formation near Truk overran the bomb and was blown to bits when it exploded.

Lieut. Col. Joseph C. Reddock, Laverne, Okla., who today led 13th AAF bombers to strike Dublon Island in the third Truk bombing in five days from Solomons bases, told the story.

"This Zero," Reddock said, "was in a vertical dive at us when he dropped his bomb. You know Zeros dive faster than bombs fall. He ran into his own bomb about a hundred yards above us. Pieces of his wreckage fell through our formation."

Those accompanying Reddock included Staff Sgt. Stephen J. Sedlock, 26, Canton, O., nose gunner credited with downing a Zero.

Famous Dairy Herd On Auction Block As Victim of War

(By Associated Press)

KANSAS CITY, April 5—One of the Midwest's largest and most famous dairy herds—born of a lumberman's concern over lack of good milk for an infant granddaughter—goes on the auction block today, a victim of labor shortage.

Longview farms, now operated by Louisa Long Combs, better known throughout the United States as a breeder and exhibitor of thoroughbred showhorses, is disposing of its 758 fine grade dairy cattle and replacing them with 700 beef cattle which need less attention.

Military demands and a higher-paying war plant jobs reduced the farm's personnel from a normal 175 to less than 100, Russell Parker, general manager, said.

"If we're to protect this $250,000 investment, there's nothing to do but sell all of the cows and dairy equipment," he commented.

The Longview dairy herd was established in 1912 by the late R. A. Long, Mrs. Combs' father. Long, concerned because he was unable to get good milk for an infant granddaughter, bought nearly 1,700 acres and assembled one of the largest herds of pure-bred Jersey cattle in the country "so that all babies of Kansas City may have dependable milk."

Much of the milk has been given to charitable institutions. The farm grew into a community of 50 buildings, including a hotel, church, hospital, school house, residences in addition to the dairy barns. Six and one-half miles of surfaced roads spread over the farm.

Congressman Lewis Calls For Simplified Tax Form

WASHINGTON, April 5—Congressman Earl R. Lewis spoke in Congress on the need for simplification of tax laws and the tax forms necessary to be filled out by income taxpayers.

He suggested a simplified form containing only five items of information as all that is necessary for any taxpayer to furnish and called upon the House ways and means committee to report out a simplified tax bill at once.

TURNING THE TABLES IN WAR GAMES
WITH SECOND ARMY ON MANEUVERS, Tenn.—Pvt. Robert M. Courtwright, truck driver for a Red infantry division, was captured by a Blue patrol.

"Know the way to the prisoner stockade?" asked a burly guard climbing into the truck cab. Courtwright nodded and ten minutes later wheeled into his own Red stockade which he had neglected to mention was the only one he knew. Then his captor became a captive.

LAUNDRY CARETAKER SAVES HIS SHIRT

NORFOLK, Va.—W. E. Hockett, laundry caretaker, was rudely awakened by a brick which crashed through his window and thudded on the floor by his bed. He poked his head out of the splintered sash to call police when the man who tossed the brick yelled: "Hey, Mister. Your building's on fire." Hockett grabbed a rope and slid safely down to the sidewalk in his nightgown. Damage to the laundry was $20,000.

G. I. TAXICABS WITH TIME CLOCKS

KEESLER FIELD, BILOXI, Miss.—Soldiers, officers and civilians can get G. I. taxis at this AAF training command station if on official business but it's only one-way service unless the business can be transacted within ten minutes. If it takes more time, they walk back.

The post motor pool instituted the service to expedite Keesler business and ordered all Army drivers to wait no more than ten minutes for passengers.

SOLDIER'S HOBBY GOOD FOR RIDE

CAMP CLAIBORNE, La.—Sgt. Paul J. Schieck has collected about 900 transportation tokens, some dating back to horse-car days when a crude celluloid button would get one a ride to town.

The tokens were issued by railway, streetcar, ferry and bus companies and range in size from a ten-cent piece to a silver dollar.

Schieck's prize token was issued to commemorate "the first streamlined street car in Philadelphia," his home town.

OPA CAUGHT WITH POINTS DOWN

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn.—Two checkers for the Office of Price Administration, hunched in an isolated country store, decided to lunch on pork and beans and cheese. But they had no ration books. "No points, no cheese or canned beans," said the proprietor. The checkers dined on unrationed crackers and candy.

BUCHAREST ATTACK REPORTED SUCCESS

Railroad Yards Damaged; Yankee Gunners Down 46 Enemy Planes

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Naples, April 5—Strong formations of United States Flying Fortresses and Liberators, in their first attack on Bucharest yesterday, caused considerable damage to the railway yards through which German supplies roll to the Russian front and left one-third of the Rumanian capital covered with smoke, headquarters announced today.

First reports indicated the gunners in the heavy bombers shot down 46 planes and pilots of the escorting Thunderbolts and Lightnings accounted for three more. Twelve Allied planes were lost in yesterday's operations in this theater which included raids against supply dumps, bridges, gun positions and bivouacs in the Italian battle area and sweeps against shipping off the Dalmatian coast.

(The Berlin radio asserted 44 planes were downed by German and Rumanian fighters during the Bucharest attack.)

Bucharest was the third Balkan capital to feel the sting of American bombs within a week, Budapest having been hit Monday and Sofia earlier. Budapest also was hit by RAF bombs Monday night.

About 200 planes were reported encountered during the raid and one group put up desperate resistance, battling a Liberator formation for one hour and 20 minutes. Anti-aircraft fire was described as moderate.

A vast quantity of material passes through Bucharest from the south by main trunk line. It also is an important storage point for oil from the nearby Ploesti fields. In addition much equipment shipped down the Danube by barge is taken ashore for shipment to the Russian front via Bucharest.

Information reaching here through non-military but reliable channels indicates the bombardments are adding to confusion and unrest already reported aging in the Balkans in the wake of Germany's latest strong-arm moves.

Hornsby Quits Job With Mexican Club

(By Associated Press)

MEXICO CITY, April 5.—Roger Hornsby, former major league great who came to Mexico back in February said today he had decided to quit his job as manager of the Vera Cruz club in the Mexican baseball league.

"The league" announced his resignation last night, adding that he would return to Fort Worth, Tex., where he played that city's Texas league club in 1942 before the league decided to quit for the duration.

"I'm perfectly willing to keep my own agreements if the other fellow keeps his," Hornsby said in explaining his action. "But in this case it's hopeless."

"I found out that I'd even have to pay my expenses on road trips and that's unheard of. The management finally consented to pay my expenses, but there were many other matters to iron out. I finally gave up."

Salem Will Be Host To 10th Annual Little City Cage Tourney

MEMORIAL BUILDING CLASSIC PLANNED APRIL 13, 14, 15

Teams from Northeastern Ohio, Western Pennsylvania to Compete

The Memorial building gymnasium will echo again with the yells of basketball fans attending another of Salem's "Little City" tournaments.

J. M. "Joe" Kelley, Memorial building manager and sponsor of the highly popular tourney, announced today that the 10th annual event would be held next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 13, 14 and 15.

He had almost decided to abandon plans for holding the tournament this season but the encouragement of local players and fans alike prompted him to go ahead with arrangements.

The 10th annual classic really won't be a Little City affair this year since Kelley has decided to open the tournament to any team, regardless of the size of the city from which it hails.

Invitations are being extended to teams throughout northeastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania.

Entries must be in by midnight next Wednesday.

Fifty trophies and prizes will be awarded the winners.

Twenty-two teams participated in last year's tournament which was won by the Louisville Sunoco.

Hornsby Quits Job With Mexican Club

(By Associated Press)

MEXICO CITY, April 5.—Rogers Hornsby, former major league great who came to Mexico back in February amid reams of publicity, has resigned as manager of the Vera Cruz club in the Mexico baseball league.

"The Rajah" announced his resignation last night, adding that he would return to Fort Worth, Tex., where he piloted that city's Texas league club in 1942 before the loop decided to quit for the duration.

"I'm perfectly willing to keep my own agreements if the other fellow keeps his," Hornsby said in explaining his action. "But in this case it's hopeless."

"I found out that I'd even have to pay my expenses on road trips and that's unheard of. The management finally consented to pay my expenses, but there were many other matters to iron out. I finally gave up."

Radio Programs

A question that has had as many answers as it has sides is to come up in America's Town Meeting on the BLUE Thursday night when it broadcasts from Cincinnati to start a spring tour. The question is "Freedom of Speech on the Air."

The panel of four speakers includes Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, co-author of the Wheeler-White radio bill; Sen. Chas. McNary, member of the senate committee which considers radio legislation; H. V. Kallenberg, NBC commentator, and Gilbert Selles, CBS executive.

Fish 'Bank' For Postwar Trout Anglers Is Colorado's Dream

AP Features

DENVER, Colo.—A fish "bank" for the post-war future? That's the dream of Colorado anglers who console themselves while casting flies in the back yard with the thought the current moratorium on mountain vacations is really a blessing in disguise and that much better fishing is just ahead.

The law of supply and demand seems to substantiate that optimism. The marked increase in resident permits includes 9,771 permits issued on a short-time basis to Colorado's temporary soldier residents.

This was particularly true in larger centers of population because the state game and fish departments greatly increased its restocking operations in lakes and streams nearer the bigger cities. In the second year of the war, Colorado moved 7,600,000 trout from its hatcheries to streams and lakes over the state, and of this number 1,500,000 were of legal size, 7 inches when transferred.

Typical in Colorado's re-stocking program is the work of the Durango hatcheries in the southwest corner of the state, one of the nation's largest.

Meticulous Care
This hatchery alone, in 1943, planted 700,000 trout of which 200,000 were large enough for the skillet.

John C. Henderson, bronzed superintendent, is really the daddy of the big ones, too, for in his domain in the rugged Rockies surrounding Vallecito lake, a 16 1/2 pound whopper was pulled last summer. Vallecito is the headwater of the Rio Grande river.

From the Durango ponds come thousands of brook, Lochleven, brown and other varieties of the trout family, and the process of segregation, separating the fish ready for transfer to lakes and streams from those still lacking growth, requires meticulous care.

Case is the only school which will have a track team but won't go in for baseball. Bowling Green, Ohio Wesleyan and Miami, among the non-conference schools, plan both baseball and track teams.

The Ohio conference will not hold a league track meet this season but Ohio Wesleyan is planning an All-Ohio meet at Delaware, June 10 or 17.

Daniel said the four schools which will have regular track teams will be represented in that meet, while Capital, Kenyon, Muskingum, Otterbein, Toledo and Wittenberg hope to enter a few boys. Akron, a probationary member of the conference, also may enter a few athletes.

The scene will shift to Buffalo Thursday night for the second game in the four-of-seven series for the league title.

SPORT CHATTER

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Writing as a small-town fan as well as a sports editor, Jimmie Murphy of the Canton, Ill., Daily Ledger offers the opinion that "small town fans are the forgotten men of the sports world despite the fact that they support sports events in the larger cities by attending sports events whenever possible."

So far as baseball is concerned, Jimmie blames the farm system for this situation and adds that, if farms were eliminated, it would mean the return of minor league baseball to many small cities which dropped out because the local owners couldn't compete with major-owned clubs.

"The Illinois-Missouri league disbanded years ago along with other minor circuits, once-prosperous organizations which provided entertainment for fans in the 'hick' towns represented. Those leagues were financed by local businessmen. Then came the farm system and goodbye baseball to most smaller cities. It is true that in most of these cities baseball did not pay its own way and that financing teams was a tough proposition. But the businessmen usually donated to and helped secure the money necessary to move a franchise and in most cases it was only a year or two until the fans demanded the return of a league team."

Jimie touches on various other angles, notably the unfairness to ball players who are held down on farm clubs. He has hit both the strength and weakness of the farm system. The weakness is that fans don't like absentee ownership, especially if the owner clubs grab off a few good players in the middle of a hot pennant race.

The strength lies in providing efficient management and absorbing the inevitable losses. As one farm advocate put it: "Baseball is a specialized business and you can't expect a small town baker or hardware man to know how to run a ball club. If those fellows have a few bad seasons, they just quit and no other club can start up in that territory until all obligations are paid off."

And, as Murphy says, the fans support events in the larger cities (or did when they had gasoline) sometimes at the expense of their home town teams.

Leo Bondy of the "Anti-Farm" Giants has one solution that he thinks will take care of the problem. That is to establish working agreements whereby the major league clubs, in return for options on a certain number of players, guarantees the minor league club against losses for the season, provided that it stays within a pre-arranged budget.

Such agreements are responsible for the revival of the Ohio State league this season. And, come to think of it, there were 19 minor leagues operating in 1920, before the farm problem became serious, and 44 in 1940 just before the war began to cut them down.

PALAU RAID THOUGHT BEGINNING OF NEW DRIVE

BATTERING of Palau from the sea and air by a U. S. naval force is considered the opening blow in the complete conquest of the Caroline Islands, as indicated on the map by the arrow. In addition, reliable sources predict an early bombing campaign against Halmahera Island, shown in circle, as a swift flanking move in a strong drive to the Philippines. No transports accompanied the Pacific Fleet's warships and carriers attacking Palau and no landing has been attempted, for—as the possible supply routes on the map show—distances present a problem which cannot be settled until Truk, which is now under constant attack, and other bases in the Caroline group are knocked out.

attorney, Jerry Giesler, veteran of the Southern California law courts. Later Chaplin, after submitting to a resounding series of backslaps, said:

"I believe in American justice. I've had a very fair trial."

The other legal matters concerning Miss Berry still confront him. Next Tuesday he is scheduled to appear in federal court, with six co-defendants, for a ruling on their demurrers to indictments charging conspiracy to deprive her of her civil rights. If the demurrers are denied they will plead to the charges and a trial date will be set.

Chaplin also faces Miss Berry's civil suit alleging he is the father of her six-month-old daughter, Carol Ann.

Chaplin was accused of causing Joan's transportation to New York in October, 1942, for immoral purposes, and back to Hollywood with the same intent. The actor admitted supplying the tickets for the trip east, but denied any immoral acts were contemplated or consummated. He denied flatly he provided the funds for the return journey, which constituted the second count of the indictment.

In all vital points Miss Berry's testimony and that of Chaplin were in diametric opposition.

RUIN JAP BASE

At a cost of five Liberators, warehouse and wharf fires were started Sunday at Dublin in Truk atoll by 40 tons of explosives and from seven to nine of 60 Nipponese interceptors were downed.

That same day, 121 tons of bombs erased more buildings, gun positions and supplies at Rabaul.

In the Admiralty Islands, after destroyers had wiped out opposition, units of the First Cavalry division occupied Rambuyto, southeast of Manus, Monday.

The Hollandia assault was one of coordinated destruction. Liberators went over high. Out went the ground defenses. Mitchell and Eastons went in low. Lightnings pitched into 30 interceptors and got 24. A Liberator got two more. The other four probably perished later on the ground. The cost of this sledgehammer blow was one Allied fighter plane.

Synthetic Rubber In Use In 75 Per Cent
Of Navy's Programs

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON—The Navy has now submitted synthetic rubber for 75 per cent of its rubber requirements.

This conversion from crude to synthetic rubber, carried out in cooperation with the War Production board and other agencies, parallels the Navy's intensive program of rubber conservation and salvage.

The Navy reported that more than 2,000 tons of usable rubber have been reclaimed from 13 war theaters by its Material Redistribution units.

The Navy's conversion from crude to synthetic rubber requirements is estimated to be 10 per cent greater than that achieved by industry in general. All of its small-sized tires are now 100 per cent synthetic except for seaming, and its intermediate sizes are approximately 70 per cent synthetic. However, the large-size tires still must be made entirely of crude rubber because of a shortage of high tenacity rayon cord which helps reduce extra heat generated by synthetic materials.

Used Exclusively Now

Another interesting item in the list of conversions is that of bullet-proof gasoline tanks which now require only 40 per cent crude rubber.

Gas masks, protective clothing, medical and surgical goods such as hot water bottles, ice caps and rubber tubing, and nearly all types of rubber footwear for the Navy are now made exclusively with synthetic rubber.

Running these goods a close second are wire and cable, with more than 95 per cent conversion based on pre-war specifications, and mechanical goods such as hose, packing and gasketing rubber required items which are about 90 per cent synthetic.

Fleet equipment, submarine battery jars and aircraft magnetos are expected to be completely converted to synthetics by April 1. Navy Rubber Director Arthur M. Hill of Charleston, W. Va., revealed this significant record in the semi-annual progress report.

running north through India near the western Burmese border.

The railway ends at the town of Ledo, up near the tip of the triangle. From Ledo American engineers drove a highway into Burma, hoping in due course to run it clear across the tip of China so as to connect with the severed end of the Burma road which leads on to Chungking.

WELL NOW, the fighting in the extreme northern theatre revolves about the Allied effort to oust the enemy so the Ledo road can be extended. That's where our Lieut. Gen. Joseph Stilwell, and Brigadier Frank Merrill, are battling. The main objective is the great Japanese base of Myitkina, head of the railway that runs south clear to Rangoon on the coast. The Allies have this base surrounded, and the conflict is increasingly fierce.

In the second theatre, where the Japanese have crossed into India, they are aiming at the railway, about 75 miles from the border, and have covered about half the distance through the jungles. "If they should cut the line they would take away with Allied communications to China, since land and air transport are coordinated."

The fighting has been heavy and the invaders have suffered 9,000 casualties in the last three weeks. The British command expresses confidence in Allied ability to control the situation. There's no reason to doubt this estimate, though some nasty positions might develop. There probably are a minimum of 1,000,000 trained and armed troops in India, and strong American and British air forces, to handle any crisis. But of course we can't afford to have the China lifeline interfered with at this juncture.

The Japanese have another important objective in this drive. That's political. They claim the invasion is being made by the Indian Army of Freedom. They want to start a revolt in India against the English.

In the southern theatre on the coast the Allies are conducting an offensive from India to capture the powerful air base of Akyab. That must be in Allied hands before an amphibious invasion of Burma can be attempted.

having been awarded by the party's national committee as a "bonus" after its 25,900-vote plurality for Roosevelt over Wilkie four years ago.

Wisconsin delegates, though pledged, are not legally bound to vote for their man in the convention, even on the first ballot.

Wilkie's poor showing was the big surprise. He had campaigned the state for 13 days, speaking in 25 cities, in a drive to erase the opposition he knew existed. He made the issue clear, declaring the result in liberal Wisconsin well might point the convention's course.

President Roosevelt's was the only name on the Democratic delegate candidate ballot.

AAA Office Raids
Bring FBI Probe

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, April 5.—Dale Williams, a member of the Ohio Agricultural Adjustment administration committee, said today opponents of the AAA program destroyed records in three Darke county AAA offices. He demanded the resignation of County AAA Chairman Ora Fellers of Greenville by Saturday.

Williams said a group of between 50 and 60 persons entered AAA offices in York, Wabash and Franklin townships and burned and tore up data on the War Food production program and records used by the Office of Price Administration.

Williams said AAA workers in the township offices were told their barns might be fired unless they quit their jobs and that a band of Fellers in his home at night and told him to quit "or else."

He added a field man from the state AAA office had investigated the incidents, which he said occurred about 10 days ago, and had made a complete report to Department of Justice officers in Dayton.

Williams described the protesters as members or associates of "pressure groups" opposing recent requirements that AAA representatives pass on applications to the Office of Price Administration for gasoline rations for farmers.

About two weeks ago a group appeared at the attorney general's office here and demanded action to prevent AAA participation in OPA gasoline rationing procedure but spokesmen for Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert said his office lacked jurisdiction because it was a federal matter.

Draftees Under 26
Are Called First

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Selective Service resorted to an age-group system today to fill the high command's requisitions for fighting men.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, outlined the new formula last night. Men under 26 will be taken first. Then, with progressively less strict requirements, the 26-29 group will be summoned, followed by those over 30.

Hershey also promised that his organization will "aid to the limit of its ability" in seeing that 4-F's who refuse to stay on their wartime jobs are made to pull their weight in the nation's fight.

There are indications, he said, that "by legislative or administrative action or by both, means will be found to insure that they do necessary work."

Hershey said local draft boards will be instructed to balance the need for food against the critical demand for military manpower in weighing farm deferments.
